

Ed Aldridge - I have always been a fanatic of the three C's- Cameras, cars, and computers. After joining the Airforce, I became a self-taught photographer, later attending several professional classes and I am always keeping current through online learning. I enjoy photographing not only family, motorsports, and travel but products, people, and events as well. I currently run a photography business with my family. I have been published in USAF publications, Wall Street Journal, Forbes, Business Insider, MSN, Gizmodo, Huffington Post, The Street, Sports Car Club of America newsletters, National Hotrod Association magazine, Super Stock, and Drag-racing Illustrated. During the day, I work as a Cyber Security Analyst, am an avid non-fiction reader, and love sharing my knowledge with others!